LOCK STEP

A world of tighter top-down government control and more authoritarian leadership, with limited innovation and growing citizen pushback

In 2012, the pandemic that the world had been anticipating for years finally hit. Unlike 2009's H1N1, this new influenza strain – originating from wild geese – was extremely virulent and deadly. Even the most pandemic-prepared nations were quickly overwhelmed when the virus streaked around the world, infecting nearly 20 percent of the global population and killing 8 million in just seven months, the majority of

The pandemic blanketed the planet – though disproportionate numbers died in Africa, Southeast Asia, and Central America, where the virus spread like wildfire in the absence of official containment protocols. But even in developed countries, containment was a challenge. The United States's initial policy of "strongly discouraging" citizens from flying proved deadly in its leniency, accelerating the

COVID-19 Responses Could Help Fight Climate Change

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3, 2021 – As the COVID-19 pandemic has overwhelmed health systems worldwide, a new report brings together low-carbon and climate-resilient health solutions that can help protect the planet and individuals against future threats.

The report, COVID-19 and Climate-Smart Health Care: Health Sector Opportunities for Synergistic Response to the COVID-19 and Climate Crises, provides a framework based on lessons from the global COVID-19 health response to help countries build stronger health systems and leapfrog toward climate-smart universal health coverage (UHC). UHC allows countries to make the most of their human capital, ensuring that people have access to the health care they need without suffering financial hardship.

In Sinai, a Prophetic Call for Climate Justice and Ceremony of Repentance

Between November 6th and 18th, 2022, the UN climate conference COP 27 will take place on the Sinai Peninsula, in Sharm El Sheikh, Egypt. Religious communities and religious leaders have a key role to play in addressing climate change and climate justice, which requires deep transformation within society. The knowledge of what changes are critically needed to diminish long-term harm to the planet is readily available. However, bringing about change in action demands deeper changes in attitude, a change of heart. This has been the domain of religions for millennia. Religions are sources of inspiration for the transformation of heart and the ensuing changes of attitude.

To support, challenge and inspire discussions during COP 27 at Sharm El Sheikh, interfaith climate events will take place in Sharm El Sheik, London, Jerusalem, and elsewhere that will be heart-stirring, transformative and a moment of inspiration for religious communities and for humanity. Religious leaders will call for a reexamination of deep-seated attitudes and for identifying ways to

Bugs: Food of the Future?

- 1 Throughout history, people around the world have suffered from a lack of food. Bad weather, crop diseases, and wars have all caused famines. Modern farming methods help prevent food shortages. They allow farmers to produce food more efficiently. U.S. farmers grow about six times more corn per acre today than they did 150 years ago. But the world's population is growing as well. Many people all over the world still go hungry.
- 2 Some scientists have a surprising idea for a source of food. Their answer to the problem? Bugs. Few people in the United States eat insects in any form. But people across the world consume them in many dishes. For example, people in Japan sometimes add silkworms to vegetables and rice for a quick and easy meal. Some Brazilians cook flying ants for a special treat. The United Nations reports that nearly two billion people in the world eat insects. They eat more than 1,900 types of them.
- 3 There are several reasons scientists support the use of insects as an important food source for the future. First, insects are a good source of nutrition. Caterpillars have about the same amount of protein per kilogram as ground beef and codfish. But caterpillars have higher levels of iron, calcium, and other vitamins. They also have about the same number of calories as baked codfish.
- 4 Scientists are most excited about how little feed it takes to raise insects. Warm-blooded animals such as pigs, chickens, and cattle need large amounts of food to stay warm. Cold-blooded insects don't. Crickets generate more than ten times as much edible food per kilogram of feed as cattle do. They produce more than twice as much as chickens and pigs do. Raising insects for food in the future will cost much less in feed. It will also have a much smaller impact on the environment.

WORLD ORDER BY HENRY KISSINGER

“The contemporary quest for world order will require a coherent strategy to establish a concept of order within the various regions and to relate these regional orders to one another.”

Kissinger recruited Klaus Schwab!

NORTH AMERICAN UNION

- Signed by then-American Ambassador to Canada Paul Cellucci, outlines the best ways to peddle the scheme to policymakers and the public.
- Discusses ways of getting around national constitutions and even the possibility of an eventual “monetary union.”

The social experiment in China under Chairman Mao's leadership is one of the most important and successful in human history. How extensively China opens up and how the world interprets and reacts to the social innovations and life styles she has developed is certain to have a profound impact on the future of many nations.
